In the recommendations to the South to abolish slavery and to repudiate the robel debt, he tound no cause otecamplaint.
As to the ratification of the anti-slavery amendment to the Constitution by the Southern Legi-slatures, it did neither good nor harm. The amendment was validly ratified by three-fourths of the States alrearly, and no additional action was wantof the governing power of the nation.
He regretted the President did not wait for the action of Congress hefore he dismissed the Provisional Governors and
